THE GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following notifications appear in yesterday's Governor-General's Gazette:

BURRIS COURTS—(22 Vic., No. 18).—In pursuance of the 4th section of the District Courts Act of 1858, His Excellency the Governor-General, by advice of the Executive Council, has issued a Proclamation to order that a Court shall be held at the following places in the Southern District, that is to say—At Yarram and Burrowa, three times during each year, at intervals of not more than five months, not less than two months; and also at Merriwa, once every year, at the following places in the South-Western District, that is to say—At Young, three times during each year, at intervals of not more than five months, not less than two months.

PRO. ACT.—His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to extend the operation of the Act of Council, 6th William IV, c. 4, intituled "An Act for abating the nuisance occasioned by dogs in the streets of certain towns and on highways in New South Wales," to the town of Maitland.

Sudden Death.—An inquiry was held yesterday, before Captain Scott, at the Prince of Wales Hotel, George-street, respecting the death of a man named John Arnold, who died suddenly at Mr. Stone's restaurant, George-street, yesterday morning. William Stone stated that deceased went to his house Friday last; deceased was a foreigner, about forty-five years of age, and was apparently in good health when he went to his establishment; deceased had a right to lodgings, saying he had no money, and that he had been working on stations up the country; he had with him two pianofortes and an oceangoing rug, which he offered to give to the station master, and a small bag containing money, at home all Sunday and Monday, he returned early, and went to bed between 10 and 10 o'clock; yesterday morning, about half-past 1 o'clock, he (witness) was called by one of the station masters, who said he had a man in the room whom deceased slept from the time he saw him, about half-past 1, until he found him dead; deceased, who was a stranger in Sydney, engaged with a gentleman staying at the Star Hotel, to go to Queensland, and, as far as he could ascertain, he was alone, deceased, stated that several times during the night he heard him groaning. Dr. Shaw, who made an examination of the body, stated that he found no external appearances which would account for death. Captain Scott, considering the method of his death, and the circumstances attending it, directed a post-mortem examination to be made, and the inquiry was therefore adjourned until to-day for that purpose.

Dogs.—The excessive number of dogs infesting the streets of Sydney and other places in the colony has for many years been a matter of complaint, and attempts have been made to restrain their numbers, but, notwithstanding these efforts, these beasts have really become pests. The curs which scold horses are particularly objectionable and dangerous. It would be well to remind persons who are annoyed by these that they may easily destroy the property of an unprivileged person, or unless such dog shall have a collar round its neck with the name and address of its owner legibly engraved thereon, or if a mastiff or bulldog or a mongrel of either of these classes, and secured by a chain, it will be liable to a fine of £100. Mississ, hence for Bowen, has founded; the crew were picked up by the Salamander cattle-ship.

TELEGRAPHIC MESSAGES.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS]

BATHURST.

Tuesday, 7 p.m.
There is intense excitement here on the Municipal question. Many ratepayers ignore the authority of the Council, and intend to resist the payment of rates. Others have appealed against the assessments, which throughout have been raised from 20 to 50 per cent. The Police Court Bench has been occupied two days in settling appeals. The magistrates have decided that the Racecourse is exempt from taxation, though most rates have been raised exorbitantly. Generally the appeals have been successful; rates being lowered to the scale of last year.

We have had another rainfall, and there is every prospect of more.

All kinds of forage are rising in price.

DUBBO.

Tuesday, 7 p.m.
Reported payable gold-field, thirty-five miles east of Dubbo, on the road to Mudgee. 300 diggers said to be on the ground to-day.

GOULBURN.

ARMIDALE.

Tuesday, 9.45 p.m.
A large and influential meeting of squatters, farmers, and stockkeepers was held at the court-house to-day—the Mayor (Mr. Moore) in the chair—to move the Government for a macadamised road to Grafton, the nearest outlet to a shipping port. The speakers were very strong, including Mr. Thomas. Resolutions were adopted unanimously affirming the necessity of speedy transit for produce, and district claims. A committee of forty-seven gentlemen was appointed to prepare a petition to the Government. Great excitement prevails in town and country.

BRISBANE.

Tuesday, noon.
The Java Government will subsidise the Torres Straits mail with 29,000 guilders, equal to £1,800. Mississ, hence for Bowen, has founded; the crew were picked up by the Salamander cattle-ship.

DEATH OF MR. THOMAS HODGKIN.—A telegram, dated Jerusalem, April 5th, has been received by Mr. S. B. & Edmonson & Co., announcing the death of Dr. Hodgkin at Jaffa, after a severe attack of dysentery. Dr. Hodgkin had proceeded to the East in company with Sir Moses Montefiore, a philanthropist who it may be remembered had succeeded in inducing the Sultan to make large concessions to his Jewish subjects. Dr. Hodgkin's whole life had been spent in the service of his fellow-creatures of all races. This very estimable gentleman died in his sixty-eighth year. He was a member of the Society of Friends, a religious body which never produced a man of more worth, and whose loss will be more widely felt.

ACCIDENT TO SIR RICHARD MACDONNELL.—The Evening News of April 10, says—"We hear, with great regret, that an accident occurred to Sir Richard MacDonnell, Bart., while on a visit to the gaol and the police barracks. He had been making a hasty inspection of the prison, and whilst walking across the compound in front of the police barracks, and having just descended the steps leading from the police court, was apparently sent down a fall in his feet, slipped, and severely hurt his head. His Excellency was rendered unconscious, and his Excellency was admitted into the charge-room of the police barracks, and the colonial surgeon having been sent for, accompanied him to the hospital in Sydney. Very fortunately, his Excellency was at the time of the fall on the hard ground, and we trust that a severe shaking of the worst kind may be anticipated."

NOTES.—Mr. John Johnson says he will call the attention of Post and Telegraph Commissioners to the fact that, at 11 o'clock, of 60 packages of men's wools and shawls, 50 were sent off without reserve, in order to close consignments in time for the outgoing mail. A punctual attendance is requested.—Anv.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC INTELLIGENCE.

We copy the following items of news from the Argus of Saturday last:

BERLIN.—Tuesday, 7 p.m.
In conformity with orders given in February, long anterior to any rumours of war, 40,000 of the Landwehr will assemble in May, for field exercises.

The Diet has nominated a committee to inquire into the reform project. The commissioners are the representatives of Austria, Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, Hanover, Mecklenburg, the Grand Duchy of Hesse, Saxo-Weltmar, and the Grand Duchy of Baden.

BERLIN, April 26.—The Gazette de l'Allemagne du Nord asserts that the Austrian military preparations continue to be carried on with redoubled energy, and declares that symptoms of a sudden offensive war exist towards Italy. Austria could probably effect the neutrality of the army, but it is difficult to conceive that Austria would adopt so far as concerns Prussia, or expect a proportional augmentation of the Prussian armaments. Prussia should have regard to the status quo ante, and to the interests of dismemberment, but that the Italian offensive armaments constrain her to adopt military measures for the protection of the Italian frontier and the seaboard of the Adriatic.

BERLIN, April 27.—The news received here by telegraph concerning Venetia, confirms the truth of the extraordinary statement made by the Argus of Saturday last.

BERLIN, April 27.—The answer of Austria to the Prussian note of the 21st, and which was duly delivered yesterday, declares that Austria accepts and adopts, so far as concerns Prussia, the initiative of dismemberment, but that the Italian offensive armaments constrain her to adopt military measures for the protection of the Italian frontier and the seaboard of the Adriatic.

NOTTINGS FROM MADRID.

(By the Special Commissioner of the Daily Telegraph)
The Duke of Wellington's despatches contain many bitter complaints, on the part of the great captain, concerning the Spanish tendency to deception. "Low intrigue and fraud, mingled with a great deal of obstinate and unyielding obstinacy," was his pithy summary of the characteristics of the Spaniard whom he came in contact. But it was with Government officials that the viceroy of the Peninsula had mostly to do—with contractors and go-betweens, and lobbyists of the Cortes—the petty local magnates and pettier grandees—with that tribe of hungry, hypocritical, false, corrupt, bureaucratic people to be found in all countries, who, like Mr. Carlyle has described under the title of "the crew of creeps," have "the humour to be." Of an elemental Spanish stock which has more or less permeated through all the industrial ranks of society, and which is known as dobles, or doublefacedness, I have been frequently warned. The Spaniard may have addicted himself to duplicity through a variety of causes. For more than two centuries the existence of such a tribunal as the Inquisition made it exceedingly perilous for any one to wear his heart on his sleeve. The dread, indeed, of that infernal institution led many a Spaniard to hide their hearts and surround them with triple walls of equivocation or reticence, forced them to put bristles on their tongues, and palliate their lips lest they should give umbrage to the familiars of the holy office. Such an education is not very apt to make men frank and candid. It rather tends to produce concealment and dissimulation. What with Philip II., who held his cell at the Escorial, and boasting that he ruled Europe with a single paper, with the disciples of the excommunicate Loyola, seeking that lying was one of the angelic virtues, and that no faith was to be kept with heretics; and with that devilish Inquisition, its armies of spies and informers, and its dungeons shrouded in impenetrable mystery, the poor Spaniard was fain to keep his tongue between his teeth, or if he spoke at all, to anticipate the Inquisitor's dictum by using language only to the real thoughts. We judge the two too hastily, or too harshly, we should remember what they have gone through. The Nigger, I perceive, is held by some amiable philanthropists in England to be exempt from the slightest blame if he piffles if he refuses to work, if he abandons his wife and children, if he besots himself with rum, and winds up by murdering his white neighbour. That poor fellow has a Lamb alive, and were he to go to Madrid, he would turn beggar. He threatened to do so once in London, if he lost his pension from the East India Company. Stern's beggar—the hero of the "riddle," the stealthy man who never accused persons of his own sex, but glided after ladies, and whispered flattery in their ears, and never asked for less than twelve sous—would have made his fortune. The specials of the Madrid beggars are rarely fruitless. The Spaniard, however, is not concernedly as those roll cigarettes. This I take it, with their extreme temperance and their fondness for phlegmatic mooning, they have learnt from the Moors. To relieve beggars is with a Mahometan as much a part of his religion as prayer and ablation. And if St. Robert Cardinal wished to become a candidate for Bethlehem Hospital, I should advise him to pass a morning at the altar of a Spanish church and an afternoon in an Algerian coffee-house. The amount of indiscriminate almsgiving he would witness would surely drive that worthy baronet stark staring mad.

Taking Spain from another point of view, one is inclined to regard it as a country remarkably free from deceptions and shame. The only utter sham in Spain is Madrid. That capital is, indeed, the perfection of make-believe. You will remember that when I first pitched my tent in the Puerta del Sol, I fell into a kind of ecstasy about the life and movement of a bustling, animated, noisy, and go-aheadness which was the city of the Moors, seemed to present. Then I heard so many newspapers cried; I saw so many bookstalls and advertisements of day schools; I found so many theatres, cafés, and reading-rooms; I beheld the Prado so crowded with brilliant equipages; I saw so many stylishly-dressed people; I described so many signs of real working civilization—photography, French bennets, gloves, new novels, Le Petit Journal, &c., and so do Cologne—that I imagined the sleek, smooth, drowsy, ignorant Spain had given up all in Ford and Arragon, and that underneath lies stagnant the real, dry, unadventured Spain of two centuries ago. When you have tried to send a few telegraphic messages, and to get a few letters from the Correo or Poste Restante—when you have studied the intricacies of the Manana tree—when you have had anything out of the common way to do with Spanish tradesmen or Spanish servants—then, with woful men, you are forced to confess that you are not well off, and that Madrid is quite a civilised capital. I could live in it, I think, very contentedly by myself for years, like the hidalgos in "Gil Blas," who kept his ready money in a big chest, and took out every morning his supply of dollars for the day. I could vegetate between the Calle de Alcalá and the Calle Mayor, a hermit as jocund as he of the Château d'Antrit; for in Madrid I enjoy the best of continental life, and the best of the shining, showy, notwithstanding, is quite a civilised capital. The promoters of this Society, being conscious of a great and growing desire on the part of the public to support some Imperial scheme, have after mature consideration, framed the "Australasian Permanent," upon the basis of one of the most flourishing societies in England. Being constituted on sound calculations, and replete with the most equitable rules, it is calculated that the same will be of great benefit to all the persons for which Building Societies were originally formed, viz., enabling provident persons to become their own LANDLORDS, and giving them a means of saving, in such an easy manner that the poor mechanic or labourer may avail himself of its benefits. It also offers many advantages to a large class of persons comprising small capitalists as a safe and profitable mode of investing small sums, 8 per cent. premium being allowed on deposits, which may be withdrawn by giving short notice.

Attention is invited to the following LEADING FEATURES.

Members may at once pay up their shares.

Members participate in the profits of the Society according to their shares.

Members may become members after first issue of share without having to pay back subscriptions.

Members may obtain advances without holding more than one share.

Interest on paid up shares 8 per cent. annum.

Interest on shares 8 per cent. per annum.

Interest on borrowed shares charged only on amount of principal remaining unpaid.

Mortgages may be redeemed at any time.

Mortgagors may withdraw their deposits by giving short notice without forfeiture of dividend.

Shares transferable.

Minors and females may become members.

Fixes at a small per centage on arrears.

Shares to be held for five years, five per cent. interest.

Annual audited half-yearly.

Prospects, with forms of application for shares, to be obtained from the Secretary, at the Society's Office.

R. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, stated publicly that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the Inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to it had been sworn to.—See TIMES, July 13, 1864.

R. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

The Right Hon. Ed. Bulwer, M.P., to the College of Physicians and J. T. AVENARD, Esq., to the Department of Health, reported that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was Chlorodyne.—See LANCASTER, Dec. 15, 1864.

R. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Extract from MEDICAL TIMES, January 12, 1866.

As far as we are concerned, there is no greater consideration to be given to the use of Chlorodyne than to the use of opium.

It is well known that Chlorodyne is a powerful emetic.

It is also well known that Chlorodyne is a powerful cathartic.
